Evaluating services for children exposed to intimate partner violence against their mothers - challenges and preliminary results

Dr. Anders Broberg is a professor of clinical psychology, a licensed psychologist and a licensed psychotherapist. His research agenda covers several central areas of relevance to clinical child psychology such as early child care, attachment (both theory and research), the effect of trauma in childhood, anorexia and shyness. He has also focused on interventions with the aim of changing family relationships, maternal beliefs so that conflicts might be solved without physical punishment or aggression.
